FINGER LAKES ESTATE & AUCTION COMPANY

THEN FINGER LAKES ESTATE & Auction Company opened, owner Charlie Dorsey introduced Tompkins County to its first auction house in decades. "A lot of high-quality stuff was shipped out of the county to be sold," Dorsey says. Now, the Ithaca area has a solution: FLEACO, an acronym for the company that not only buys pieces, but auctions them, too from individual items to entire collections.

FLEACO deals in coins, equipment, fine art (everything from local artists to potential Magrittes), jewelry, and furniture. A key staff member is certified appraiser, Steven Daly, of Ithaca Vintage. The response so far has been stellar.

"Whether settling an estate or just downsizing, one of the biggest mistakes people make is allowing their estates to be Picked," explains Dorsey. "Once the 'cream of the crop' is skimmed off the top, it's hard to draw a large audience." That's where FLEACO comes in. Using the Internet for leverage, FLEACO wields an international reach with caring attention to detail. This summer, a 1941 Cadillac sold to an Australian bidder for $51,000! Combine a welcoming gallery environment with the team's refreshing energy, and you've got a recipe for success.

FLEACO runs in-house Auctions every other Saturday at our Gallery in Ithaca (478 Lower Creek Road, Ithaca)...find us on WHERE DO YOU GET YOUR ANTIQUES?

By Shana Karn and Andy Seyfried, Co-Owners of The Second Knob Gifts & Antiques

129 North St. Dryden

THIS IS SOMETHING WE ARE asked frequently. Everyone wants to know where we've managed to collect our treasury of antiques—many times because they want to sell us something their Grandmother's Great Aunt's Brother in Law, who served in WWI, gave them... You get the idea. Obviously, there is no one place to go for antiques. We find them in barns, at sales, at auctions, in shops... However, often, we are invited into people's homes when they are downsizing or when they want to "clean out." We smile through stories of chairs and step stools that elderly folks remember climbing on as a child to help a parent or grandparent make bread or stir cookie batter at a too-tall kitchen counter; we laugh along with others who share funny memories of gathering around the Philco or Zenith Floor Model Radio they are now preparing to part with; we share sorrow with women who have to sell the dresser their great grandmother gave them as a child or the bookcase their late husband pieced together with old boards. The stories are sometimes long, told over a cup of coffee or a glass of lemonade and the storyteller is most often expressive. We bond with these folks as we listen to their tales of hardship and happiness and how it relates to the item in front of us and, as we do, their emotional investment in the item becomes our own. We fall in love with their possessions because we hear how they fell in love with them. We marvel at collections, often started during childhood, that have grown old with the owner and have been carried from place to place—whether home to home or country to country. Our own emotional attachment makes selling an item difficult—we have to keep our emotions "in check" as we determine the worth of an item through research and/or knowledge because no value can be placed on nostalgia or emotional ties... There are times when a newly acquired item doesn't go on the sales floor immediately because we struggle with letting it go—just as its previous owner did. When we do sell such an item, we try to share its history with the buyer-partially because we want them to feel as strongly about it as we do but also because we want its story to continue. We like passing on the provenance of our pieces when we can.

When we acquire something and know nothing about its history, it is often easier to simply put a price on it. Do we always know what an item is worth? No.

There are times we've been offered pieces that we know nothing of and the Seller has no idea what it is nor any history attached to it. This is when we spend countless hours on the Internet or going through various reference books to help us. Often, we are able to get some information on it but sometimes we work diligently with no success.

We might post pictures to specific websites seeking information on items, looking for a name, a use and, of course, a value. Sometimes, we learn exactly what we have and sometimes we don't. There have been times that we've contacted Sellers long after purchasing something from them to tell them just what it is they sold us and, sometimes, to tell them we want to give them an additional payment above our previous offer.

Like the housing market, there is a market for antiques and collectibles. One day, everyone is buying Depression glass and ornate furniture, and the next day, we cannot give it away. Because there are fluctuations in the antiques market and our storage space is very limited, taking items on consignment can be difficult and very, very time consuming.

In the early 90's, as eBay became widely recognized and used, collectors found a venue for selling their treasures—to other collectors and to the general public. Then, with the boom of television programming like American Pickers romanticizing picking and antiquing and Flea Market Flip encouraging people to make what's old new again, the antique market has changed drastically in the last several years. The audience interested in antiques and collectibles has exploded; novice buyers are paying attention to antiques and collectibles that, at one time, they just passed by-and now "pick" in hopes of reselling for a profit because they saw "the same thing happen on American Pickers." Frequently, people who come into the shop with the specific goal of selling us an antique, tell us that they've already looked up what the item is selling for on eBay or that they saw the "same exact" piece sell on Pickers. We hear it almost daily. We have to remind almost every seller > that American Pickers is a television show meant to entertain and that using eBay as a reference for pricing requires ignoring "asking prices" and looking at actual sale prices (and there can be a sizable difference between the two). It is also imperative that people who walk into our shop understand that we don't pay Picker and eBay prices for items because we have huge overhead (storefront rent, payroll, etc.).

On one hand, it is neat to see so many people taking an interest in antiques and collectibles but it definitely has changed both the buying and selling landscapes for shops and dealers. However, we love talking about (and sometimes showing off) the pieces in our shop and we welcome everyone to stop in—to browse, to buy or to chat!

MIKE'S FISH TANK BLACK MOORS

 \mathbf{I} HAVE A LOT OF customers who love goldfish and why not, they are easy to care for, they don't mind it being cold and they do not get sick very easily. One of the favorites is the black moor, black scopes, and black butterfly. All are black with subtle differences.

The black moor is a telescope-eyed variety of fancy goldfish that has a characteristic pair of protruding eyes. It is also referred to as popeye, telescope and dragon eye in China. Black Moors have deep bodies with long, flowing finnage, along with the characteristic protruding eyes.

They are veil-tailed and possess metallic scales with a velvet like appearance. Young Moors resemble bronze fantails. Their black coloration and eye protrusion develop with age. They can grow up to a length of 10 inches and do not lose that velvet like appearance with age. The lifespan of a moor is 6 to 25 years. The fish can range in coloring anywhere from a lighter grey to a dark black, but most Black Moor goldfish don't stay pure black forever and many of them change colors from a rust color underbelly to orange splotches. Although their eyes are large, their vision is generally poor. Black moor goldfish are popular because their black color sets them apart from the more common gold color. Black moors do well with other fancy goldfish varieties. Other colors of the telescope family are the red, red-white, calico, chocolate, brown, blue, bronze, lavender, chocolate-blue, and tricolored. Black and white moors are called panda moors and are more rare and cost a bit more. Black moors do sometimes throw normal-eye offsprings, and they are black

Another variation of the black moor is the black butterflyfish. They look like a moor but have a longer triple tail that is gorgeous. They too are more rare and can cost a bit more.

CNY LIVING HISTORY CENTER

While you're out this fall enjoying the scenery, make sure you stop by the CNY Living History Center! Stop in for a walk through any one of our three museums on site. Each artifact has a story and history all its own, and there are so many to see that you just might miss some!

Our Homeville side boasts a huge collection of over 10,000 historical artifacts, mostly related to military history. However there are certain displays that showcase local history and Cortland County has no shortage of history to offer. As you walk around the outside of the Homeville exhibits you will come across a glass case with some trophies displayed on top and an old Braves jersey hanging to the left. Well, back on May 9, 1939 Homer would receive a semi-pro baseball team with the formation of the Homer Braves in the Southern Tier League. Famous players such as Hank Aaron and Willie Mays came through Homer at one point to play! In our Homeville collection, you can find a game used bat from Hank Aaron on display along with a ball signed by the man who scouted him for the MLB, Dewey Griggs.

Our Brockway side features a rotating collection of Brockway Trucks. Brockway Trucks would be manufactured in Cortland from 1912 until 1977. But before George Brockway started to make motor trucks in 1912, his father, William Brockway, was laying the groundwork by building carriages and surreys. Upstairs on the Brockway side, you will find three Brockway carriages. But what most people don't know is that the original carriage works still stands to this day. If you take a right out of our parking lot and drive towards Homer, on the right you'd come across a red building with a sign above that reads, "UNROOM." That is what remains of the original Brockway carriage works from the late 19^{th} century! You can now see a new Brockway surrey on display in our lobby that was made back in 1895!

Our Tractors of Yesteryears, or TOYS, Barn houses the agricultural history collection as well as a smaller component we like to call, "Grandma's Kitchen." Grandma's Kitchen rotates out its exhibits just like the rest of the museums and this year's theme is antique barns and dollhouses. One of the dollhouses can be seen that was hand-made out of old shipping crates. It may not look like much to the, but that shipping crate dollhouse has a story. The crates and materials used to build it date back to the early 1920s during the Great Depression. During the Great Depression, families struggled to put food on their plates let alone provide toys for their children, and this hand-made doll house serves as a reminder to a time when things as simple as a child's toy weren't take for granted.

The CNY Living History Center is open Tuesday through Saturday from 10am to 5pm and all three museums are included in the admission price! The Center is located at 4386 US Route 11 in Cortland. Come and enjoy a walk through history with us this fall!

Ron Stanley and family have been offering the absolute finest in contemporary automotive services since 1989 at their one-stop vehicle service center in Marathon at 31 Cortland Street (607-849-6898) and both locations are providing the same great services Ron's Body & Paint has been known for. Here are five reasons you need to call Ron's Body & Paint!

One: they are the biggest body shop in the area, and the place to go for body and paint work done using a state-of-the-art down draft paint booth and waterborne paint. Plus, you will get a free loaner.

Two: they are a full-service center that handles everything from brakes, NY State inspections, and oil changes for only $19.95... 4-wheel alignments to deals like a 10% discount with the purchase of 4 tires.

Three: 24-hour towing for all vehicles, tractors, and heavy and light vehicles - complete with AAA roadside service.

Four: they have 28+ years of experience, featuring mechanics who are all licensed.

Five: they are a locally-owned business with 2 locations to serve you. That's Ron's Body & Paint, on Cortland Street in Marathon, and on Route 13, across from Elm Tree golf course in Cortland.

And of course, your satisfaction is always guaranteed. ASK RON ABOUT A FREE LOANER CAR WHILE YOUR COLLISION REPAIR WORK IS DONE! Like them on Facebook! Or on the web ronsbodyandpaint.com.

Ron and Mary and all of us at Ron's Body & Paint wish everyone a safe Columbus Day weekend.
