MIKE'S FISH TANK GLOFISH

THE FLUORESCENT COLOR IN GLOFISH is produced by an lacksquare inherited fluorescent protein gene that is passed from generation to generation and creates the beautiful fluorescence that can be seen when looking at the fish. The fluorescent protein genes are derived from naturally occurring genes found in marine organisms.

There are several varieties of glofish now. The zebra danios were the first ones,then the glo tetras, after that were the longfin variety of glo tetras. Recently they came out with the red and the green tiger barbs. These have been a little bit harder to get, although we have had them a few times. And the newest glofish are the sharks. As of now there are just 2 colors of sharks and they are quite expensive but as more become available, prices should come down and availability should go

When it comes to the care of GloFish, their needs are the same as their duller freshwater brethren regarding tank size, water temperature, food, etc. Life spans average from 3.5 to 5 years, comparable to the average lifespan of tetras and many other aquarium fish.

Like all tropical fish, glofish like a temperature of 78 to 79 degrees and feed them a variety of flake food and freeze dried

TODAY IS ALL THAT MATTERS

'TWO GIFTS TO GIVE THE MEN IN YOUR LIFE FOR FATHER'S DAY'

 $\mathbf{I}_{ ext{F I HAD A MAGIC}}$ Wand and I could create the perfect Gifts for You to give to all the males in your life this Father's Day it would be the Gifts of Awareness and Listening. Combined, they create the experience of Connection & Understanding, the necessary foundation for Peace & Harmony in our Homes, our Communities, and for our Humanity

Gift #1: Awareness - as a Life Coach and Educator. I have had the honor to sit with many men and women, individually and together, to support their moving from confusion to Clarity, and from dissonance to Harmony te can begin to undo and Gift the men in our live Awareness in our Presence with them that conveys we recognize them as equally multifaceted as we women are, and that they equally have the depth and range of fears and feelings that women do.

It might almost sound both absurd and obvious when you read this, however, because we have experienced much of our lifetime subject to the same cultural patterns, societal programming as men, we too have bought into some limiting perspectives and beliefs, unknowingly, and we act from, unconsciously.

To discover if this is true for you, you can flush it out with the question; 'Do I ever feel scared, nervous, or uncomfortable if/when my male significant other (or Brother, Son, or Father) expresses confusion, or that they feel defeated, uncertain, or afraid?'

Listen in Stillness for your most truthful response. If you do hear a 'Yes, truthfully that does freak me out a bit' then it suggests you simply have a view or false belief that resulted from all the stories you were raised to believe about men that might (thankfully) be ready for questioning, Now.

Many women have been raised and conditioned at a very deep level to view and relate to men - especially their husbands and boyfriends- as strong, clear, solid, and powerful. Many women say they want a man to share and express his feelings, vulnerably, yet for those women who are unaware of deeper beliefs, this can occur as scary when a male partner does make himself vulnerable, and it's met with fear and agitation by their wives/

Because men often receive a mixed signal with this, they typically shut down expression because they get 'bit' when they express a side of themselves that isn't 'strong and solid'. As we women free ourselves of our own hidden beliefs about men, we can truly support men reconnecting with the range and depth of their own feelings, and they can do so safely, and be met with the open mind and arms of Understanding & Compassion.

Kenyon, Marie A.

Gift #2: Listen; Listen more, advise less. There may be a time when your advice is directly asked of You by a male in your life, yet pay close attention to yourself between now and Father's Day- take inventory of how often you quickly advise the men in your life before being asked for your opinion or what he 'should' do.

A great Gift you can give your partner (and all the men in your life to honor Father's Day) is the Gift of Listening more, and suspending your opinions until asked. Ask more about what he felt during whatever story/event/ situation he is telling you about. Ask what it was like for him when his boss said 'I need to cut your hours back'. Ask what it felt like when his daughter like when his teacher said I told you you can figure the math problem out Intentional & Active Listening allows for the speakers Inherent Wisdom to arise all on its own. This allowance, when uninterrupted by the Listener (You), will be far more potent than most anything you would have suggested or advised. Our own Wisdom from within is laden with specific and clear directions that are particular and best suited to bring one into balance. Often female partners are conditioned to advise and give directions, which over time can edge into the experience of their male partners as critical and judgemental. Them most common complaint I hear from men is that they believe they 'can't ever do it right or good enough' for their partners. Constant and repetitive advice giving and 'suggestions for improvement' wears away at men's willingness to open up, as they fear more criticism or 'fixing'.

I invite you to test both Awareness & Listening with all the men in your life, especially your partners, and experience for yourself the increase in Connection & Harmony that awaits the Magnificence of your Potential,

CNY LIVING HISTORY CENTER

UR EXHIBITS WON'T BE THE only things changing around the CNY Living History Center this year. One of the biggest and most exciting changes happening this year is a total regrading, repaving, and striping of our entire parking lot. We got a very generous donation of $215,000 from Peter Grimm to complete this endeavor. This will no doubt have a very noticeable impact on the Center, and cannot begin to thank Peter enough along with all of our donors for supporting us. We will also be building an illuminated road sign that will be 12 feet wide and 8 feet high and stand on posts 20 feet in the air. This new sign will be seen for miles around and hopefully attract more people to our museum. Now people will longer have any excuses for saying, "we didn't know this place was here!" Our storage shed that used to stand out back of the building has been torn down. It was sold and torn down at no cost to the Living History Center. Where it used to stand, is where the Nadge Memorial Garden will soon be. This garden project also ties into our back porch project that was started earlier this year. These improvements are all in an effort to bring a better experience to each and everyone one of our visitors who comes in each day. By constantly looking to improve our displays and especially our facilities, we can make each experience for our visitors a memorable one. Also, all of these efforts to improve our facilities are thanks to our volunteers and donors who make it all possible. Without our donors and volunteers the Living History Center would not exists as you see it today. We are forever grateful and will keep your history alive for years to come.

We are now open on Sundays from 1 to 5 until Labor Day, September 2nd so now you have six days to choose from to visit. Also don't forget to follow us on Facebook and Instagram @CNYLivingHistory! Come take a walk through history with us!

I-DEAL SELF STORAGE

I-Deal Self Storage is a local family owned and operated business. Bill and Shirley Hilker purchased land at 4118 Rabbit Run Rd., Trumansburg, NY in 1995 and with the help of their grandsons built their first set of storage units. We offer both Standard Storage and Climate Control Storage at our new facility. Standard Storage is conveniently located on the outside of the building with Climate Control on the inside corridors. Climate Control has the added benefit of heat in the winter and air conditioning in the summer as well as dehumidifiers running at all times.

CREATURE FEATURECAUTION: TURTLE CROSSING!

This time of year, as the days warm up, turtles strike out in search of forage, territory and mates. As well, female turtles are seeking out the best places to lay their eggs. Unfortunately, these behaviors may put turtles at great risk, as many are killed by vehicles while crossing the roads. Please watch out for turtles when you're driving from May - October, when they're most active. If you see a turtle in need of "roadside assistance," here are a few tips:

- Your safety first! Signal and pull over properly; put on your hazards, and check for vehicles before you walk onto the road.
- If the turtle is moving along, it's often best to simply stand guard and allow it to cross on its own.

- If it's hunkered down, you can pick it up by gripping it securely with two hands placed at the back of the shell. Stoop down as you carry the turtle, and try not to drop it. Using the same grip, you can use the "wheelbarrow" method: lifting just the back end of the turtle and "walking" it across the road. For a large &/or aggressive turtle (snapping turtles can lunge and may bite), slide a car mat, a big piece of cardboard, etc., under it, and drag it to safety. A handy shovel or broom in your vehicle can be used to gently scoot turtles along. Never pick up a turtle by its tail, as this can
- Lastly, always try to move the turtle in the $same\ direction\ it\ was\ heading\ when\ you$ first saw it, and if possible, place it several feet off the roadway.
