NIGHTINGALE'S TULLY LAKES HARDWARE GETTING READY TO RAISE BABY CHICKS THIS SPRING

At NIGHTINGALE'S TULLY LAKES HARDWARE, the arrival of baby chicks into the store is a sure sign that Spring is just around the corner. Customers place orders for their choice of breeds in February and pick them up when they are delivered to the store during the last week of March. If you decide to order chicks, New York state requires you to purchase a minimum of six- but you can mix and match between breeds. Stop in the store for an order form to reserve your favorite breeds. This year, Nightingale's is offering buff orpingtons, columbian wyandottes, black australorps, buff cochins, dominiques, red leghorns, and speckled sussex. (Typically, extra chicks are also available for people that did not pre-order in advance.) Nightingale's has poultry supplies, Nutrena Feeds and Keystone Feeds to get you started with your new chickens.

You've just arrived home with a brimming box of peeping chicks, how exciting! The journey you are about to embark on is an exciting one, so get ready to learn about chick life stages and love those new fluffy creatures.

What to Expect - Week 1: Before you go to pick up your new chicks, make sure the brooder is ready to go at home. This will prevent any unnecessary stress, for both you and the chicks. Chicks thrive in ideal conditions, so consider these tips for getting started-

- Heat: Suspend a warm bulb about a foot above the brooder floor for warmth – and have a second bulb on hand in case one burns out. Keep temps in the brooder about 90-95 degrees F for the first week, decreasing about 5 degrees per week. Raise the light as chicks grow.
- Environment: Be sure your brooder is big enough so your chicks can move about comfortably. Keep it out of drafts. Stock tanks, plastic tubs and homemade brooders are a few good options. Do not allow the brooder to become wet or damp.
- Bedding: Pine wood shavings are ideal. Avoid straw and newspaper as these become slippery for chicks. Clean bedding daily.
- Water: Be sure clean, fresh water is always available. Elevating the waterer a couple inches off the floor will help it stay clean and prevent bedding from contaminating it. Don't forget, the journey to their new home was a long one, so consider providing some water with vitamins and electrolytes for the first few days.
- Feed: Have chick starter feed available 24/7. Your chicks will eat just what they need. One chick will eat about 10 pounds of chick starter in its first weeks of life. There are some great options available when considering chick starter feeds.

Expect some peeping as the chicks get acquainted in their new environment, learning to drink and eat. They will likely do this for 4 or 5 days. If the peeping seems to be excessive, make sure you evaluate the brooder for anything that may be causing distress. A good indicator on temperature is to evaluate where the chicks are located. If they are spread out, they are likely comfortable. If they are huddled under the heat source, they may be too cold and temperature adjustments should be made. If they are on the edges of the brooder (not under the heat source) then they are likely too hot.

What to Expect - Week 2-3: After the first week, their down will start to turn into feathers, and by week 4 you can expect to see more feathers than down. With adequate food, water and proper temperature, your chicks should be acclimating quite well to their new home. Don't forget the importance of brooder maintenance during this time.To keep odors at bay and cleanliness paramount, make sure you are cleaning out the brooder once a week and adding fresh shavings.Place the waterer in the corner to prevent dampness throughout the entire brooder.

What to Expect - Week 4-6: At this time, you may notice your chicks starting to test their wings.At week 6, the brooder is likely getting a little crowded, and you should consider the transition outside to the coop.It's wise to choose a nice day to do this, as it will be less of a shock to the birds.It's important to note that during this transition, you should make sure your chicks are fully feathered so they are prepared for the elements.The change in environment can be a big one for your chicks, so consider these tips as you move them from brooder to adult coop:

- Chicks should be mostly feathered – At 5 to 6 weeks your fluffy chicks will start to resemble adult birds by growing out pinfeathers.
- These adult feathers will help them regulate their body temperature better than fluffy chick down.
- Chicks should be acclimated – Although they start off at 90 – 95 degrees in the brooder the first week of life, you need to decrease this temperature each week until the temperature inside the brooder is close to what daytime temps will be. For the first few weeks (and especially if outdoor temperatures are fluctuating), you may want to bring the birds back into the brooder at night or in bad weather.

At this point it is also important to remember, if you have youngsters joining your existing flock, to only feed chick starter to all birds until the youngest bird is 16 weeks. Otherwise the extra calcium in regular layer feed can harm young chicks. Once you've reached the 16 week mark, it is safe to switch to layer feed. Your hens will most likely not be laying until they are around 24-26 weeks old, but it is important to build up the calcium level in their system. Using a layer crumble makes the transition a little easier.Chicks should also be eating treats and grit by now. It's a great idea to get your birds used to eating treats (if you plan to offer them) a few days prior to putting them outside. That way, you can use the treats to lure the birds into a secure space at night, if needed.Until they are used to thinking of the coop as "home base" they may need just a bit of encouragement to go back in at night.

NESTLED IN THE HILLS OF Otisco New York, The View is a hidden destination well worth the visit. The establishment currently features an indoor sports bar with a large section of seating to enjoy the big game, as well as an outdoor bar for the warm months while golfers tee off on the infamous 9th hole, and to top it off, a walkway over the bridge to the newly constructed Event Center.

What's better than a business? A family business. From picking rocks, to mowing the grass, to building the buildings... It has been a Schoemaker project. It all started in 1999 when Mike and Rolanda Schoemaker broke ground on the project with their three children: Heather, Christopher, and Stephen. It has since expanded further and further past what they would have imagined.

The golf course has been host to incredible tournaments, leagues, and benefits to support local causes. The course consists of nine par 3 holes, great for any age to enjoy the beautiful game of golf.

The sports bar features an environment like no other. With an incredible selection of drinks, and delicious food, there is no better place to enjoy great company.

Lastly, the event center is the newest addition. Surrounded by 8 foot windows, a beautiful wood finish theme, topped off with picturesque views, the Event Center creates a lifelong memory for your event. Whether you are interested in a venue for a Wedding, Bridal Shower, Baby shower, Holiday Party, Family Reunions, etc. The Event center is a must see when deciding. Check us out on Facebook!

Mink, Muskrat & Beaver Trapping

Over population of these animals may be an issue if you have flooding problems, downed trees, creeks & streams with little or no water flow. We use traps fully submerged underwater, no foot set traps are used, only conibears. We trap during open season even with a nuisance permit issued by the DEC. We do not charge for our services.

A MOTHER’S PLEA...HELP,
OUR CHILDREN ARE DYING
LAREE’S LAW

CATERINA COOK RECENTLY LOST HER young son, Chace Bentley, to a Heroin overdose. In doing research online, she found out about Laree’s Law – started by a family in the Albany area that also lost a loved one to an overdose. The proposed law, if passed, would allow law enforcement officials to charge a drug dealer with homicide if a death results from the sale of heroin or an opiate controlled substance. Unfortunately, though this law was passed in the NY Senate, it has since stalled out in the NY Assembly, and the aim of the campaign that Caterina and her friends and family have started is to bring this important topic back to the forefront, and finally get the law passed. In doing so, she hopes to make communities safer for all. For more information, please visit her Facebook group “BentleyStrong” (facebook.com/groups/bentleystrong) to see how you can get involved.

MIKE’S FISH TANK
FLOATING

A LOT OF PEOPLE ARE floating their bags of fish too long. When you buy fish take them home right away. If they get chilled, they could get sick. When you arrive home, put the plastic bag of fish into your tank to equalize the temperature.

But only float the bag 4 to 5 minutes. I have heard people floating the bag for 15 minutes to 24 hours. This is bad.

The longer you float the bag, the more dangerous it is for your fish. The bag heats up and then the oxygen dissipates and can cause your fish to die.

There is not that much water in a bag of fish, it will equalize in 4 to 5 minutes. It is also a bad idea to add water from your tank into the bag of fish and float longer. This just makes it harder for the fish to adapt. The fish farms have always told me, get the fish home and into their tank as fast as possible. That is the least amount of stress on a fish.

Also, don’t try to change your PH. Fish can and will adapt to PH as long as you leave it alone. Changing the PH daily or weekly just makes it worse.

CREATURE FEATURE WILD VALENTINES

ANIMALS PREFER LOVE ON THE wild side, making their intentions known in ways that clearly say, “BE MINE.”

Red foxes breed in late winter during which females are fertile for just 1-6 days. It is the only time of year that males produce sperm. Foxes may mate for life, choose new partners or breed promiscuously; regardless, the vixen selects only one male to help raise offspring. Males sometimes spar as they collectively trail after one female until she settles on Mr. Right. Once she does, the pair strengthens their bond, mate and selects a den site. Foxes are notoriously vocal during mating season, expressing rapture with loud barks, yips, soft howls and hair-raising screams.

Every girl’s crazy ‘bout a sharp-dressed man, and hooded merganser gals are no exception. “Hoodies” are small diving ducks that nest around secluded ponds. Their courtship rituals kick in over the winter when the flashy-feathered guys do their best to impress the more subtly dressed ladies. Male hoodies sport chestnut flanks, bold black and white patterns, bright yellow eyes and an eye-catching circular white crest edged in black. During dramatic courtship dances including wing-spreads and head bobbing, the fellas flare their magnificent crests and utter drawn out, frog-like croaks. Who, I ask, could possibly resist?

CORTLAND COUNTY TRIVIA

DID YOU KNOW THAT CORTLAND County was part of the Military Tract? The Military Tract was almost two million acres across New York which had been set aside as payment for soldiers who served in the American Revolution. Land was plentiful and cash was not. New York gave each soldier 600 acres in lieu of cash, and officers received more acreage according to their rank.

At the end of the Revolutionary War, Cortland County was still part of Onondaga County. For the new settlers in the area, going to the county seat of Syracuse was a long and sometimes dangerous journey. There were very few roads, and those were more like trails than roads we would recognize today. Panthers, wolves, and bears filled the thick forests and preyed on livestock and unsuspecting people. It wasn’t long before citizens in this area began to petition for a separate county. Cortland County was split from Onondaga County on April 8, 1808.

Can you name the original six towns in Cortland County?

The answer will be in the next issue of the Cortland Area Tribune! Each issue of the CAT will have a dose of Cortland County trivia, so stay tuned!
